BRIG. GEN. JOHN H. MICHAELIS, USA, the new Chief of Legislative Liaison, Office of the Secretary of the Army, is welcomed to Washington by Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker. General Michaelis, who has been selected for two-star rank, formerly was in command of Southern European Task Force in Italy. He succeeds Brig. Gen. J. E. Bastion, Jr., the Deputy Chief who has been Acting Chief pending arrival of Gen. Michaelis.

Machines Erratic, Army Lts. Overlooked; Pentagon Will Rush New Selection Board

Army officials this week were rushing action to convene a selection board which will consider roughly 300 first lieutenants for temporary promotion to captain.

As a result of a machine records malfunction, a considerable number of eligible first lieutenants were not listed on the eligibility slate.

This meant their names were not considered by the board.

An Army spokesman said this week "it still isn't certain exactly how many names were omitted, but it appears to be in the neighborhood of 300 or so."

He stressed that no officer will lose any seniority. Dates of rank will be adjusted.

It is possible, however, that a limited number of senior first lieutenants, whose names are at the top of the list, could lose out on small amounts of pay.

First promotions from the recommended list are scheduled for late this month or early in December.

The Army learned of the machine records error when a number of first lieutenants inquired as to why they had been passed over.

Exchanges Strive To Avoid Price Hikes Despite Increased Costs; Seek More Items

The Army-Air Force Exchange Service, faced with increased operational costs, will strive to keep prices at present levels, or below.

That's the pledge from Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, Exchange Service Chief, who is ending a distinguished military career with retirement on 30 Nov. He will be succeeded by Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF.

Coincidental with release of the Exchange Service's annual report, which showed world-wide sales of $808,647,656 during the past fiscal year, General Peckham went on record in support of proposals to expand PX privileges in the United States.

Questioned by newsmen as to the Exchange Service's attitude towards suggestions that current restrictions on PX

Armed Services Leadership At Capitol Sees Few Changes; Seven Seats Vacated

There will be few changes on the roll of Congressional leaders who will guide Defense Department legislation through the 85th Congress.

As THE JOURNAL went to press, nearly-complete election returns showed five vacancies on the House and Senate Armed Services Committees and two on House Military Appropriations subcommittees.

Only a handful of other seats still were in doubt.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), who was reelected for his 23d consecutive term in Congress, and Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), who was reelected in 1954, will continue as head of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees.

The House Committee will have four vacancies, created by the defeat of Representatives Dewey Short (R-Mo) and Victor Wickersham (D-Okla) and the resignation of Representatives Charles P. Nelson (R-Me) and Robert H. Mollohan (D-WVa). The defeat of Mr. Short places Representative Leslie C. Arends of Illinois in position to be ranking minority member of the committee.

Congressman Short, ranking minority member, and Chairman of the Committee during the 83d Congress, had represented his district for 24 years.

Members of the House Armed Services Committee still were fighting for their seats at press time: They are Representatives Leroy Johnson (R-Calif), who was losing to his opponent; Paul Cunningham (R-Iowa), Clyde Doyle (D-Calif) and George P. Miller (D-Calif), all three of whom were leading.

The Senate Armed Services Committee had lost only one member, Senator Herman Welker (R-Idaho) who was defeated in his bid for reelection. One other member was fighting what appeared to be a losing battle, James H. Duff (R-Pa).

The three Chairmen of the House Army, Navy and Air Force Appropriations subcommittees retained their seats. They are, respectively, Representatives Robert L. F. Sikes (D-Fla), Harry Sheppard (D-Calif) and George H. Mahon (D-Tex). Two vacancies were created, one by the defeat of Representative Charles B. Deane (D-NC) in his state's primary, and the other by the defeat of Representative Glenn R. Davis (R-Wisc) in his bid for the Senate.

Senator Carl Hayden (D-Ariz), Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, was reelected, as were all other candidates with the exception of one. Senator Earle C. Clements (D-Ky) was holding a slight lead in a hard-fought battle with his opponent.

Sec. Wilson May Drop Move To Eliminate Veterinarians; Study Nears Completion

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson may change his mind about abolishing the Veterinary Corps.

A final Pentagon study containing recommendations for the future role of military veterinarians will be placed on the Defense Secretary's desk late this month.

There are strong indications the study will show Mr. Wilson's proposal offers too many stumbling blocks for easy fulfillment.

The Secretary has urged that Veterinary Corps officers be "washed out" of the Armed Forces and their work turned over to Department of Agriculture inspectors and civilian veterinarians.

However, the proposal faces a number of obstacles. Here are some that already have developed and some that Defense sources say are in the making:

- The legality of Mr. Wilson's move is questioned by the powerful Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Representative Carl Vinson (D-Ga.).

- Medical and veterinary groups, including the strong voice of the American Medical Association, have taken firm stands against the proposal.

- The Surgeons General also are reported to be opposed to the move.

- The Department of Agriculture has not come forward with plans which show its willingness or ability to take over all of the services currently performed by the uniformed veterinarians.

- The one phase of the veterinary program which Agriculture reportedly is willing to absorb (inspection of foods at their place of origin) may be more costly than the similar program conducted by the Armed Forces.

- Morale factors are involved. Not only would veterinarians be dispirited by the step, but the Services fear that if the Secretary is permitted to abolish one corps he could take similar action against other segments of the military community.

These are some of the problems which Mr. Wilson faces in making a final decision, and it is anticipated that they will be heightened rather than diminished by the report which is to be placed before him on about 30 Nov.

This report, which is being drafted by the Army (coordinating agency for the proposal), will give a cost analysis and show the phases of the veterinary work which the Department of Agriculture feels it can undertake.

It also will indicate the scope of work which will have to be farmed out on a contract basis, and the work which military Medical Corps or Medical Service Corps personnel will have to add to their already over-burdened programs.

In addition, the report will have been carefully reviewed by the Surgeons General and will have their evaluations attached.

The Services have been working closely with representatives of Agriculture in developing the final report. No firm cost figures have yet been presented, however, and Agriculture has not supported Mr. Wilson's contention that the Department can absorb most if not all of the workload involved.

A Defense Department spokesman says the proposal did not anticipate that Agriculture would take over all of the Veterinary Corps activities. Some of the VC activities, the spokesman said, would continue to be performed by Veterinarians who are offered a chance to transfer to another branch or arm; other work would be transferred to Medical Corps or Medical Service Corps personnel.

In a letter to the Defense Secretary, Chairman Vinson said he has been advised that the transfer or elimination of veterinary functions may necessitate the utilization of approximately 400 additional physicians.

The Services already are short medical personnel and last year's convention of the Association of Military Surgeons reported that there will be a requirement for greater reliance on veterinarians and other para-medical personnel in any future conflict.

The question of abolishing or transferring Armed Forces veterinary services has been kicking around for several years. In 1951, the Bureau of the Budget recommended that the military departments make greater use of Department of Agriculture inspectors. Since that time, numerous studies have been made and some Veterinary Corps functions have been transferred to Agriculture.

The current proposal came out of a special study which Secretary Wilson ordered early this year.

In April, appearing before a House Military Appropriations Subcommittee, Mr. Wilson was questioned about the prospects of further reductions in the Defense budget. The Defense Secretary said he had "suspicions" that there were still some areas of waste, and he added that he was working on "a couple of little personal ventures."

Under further questioning, he said one of these "personal ventures" was abolition of the Veterinary Corps. The Defense chief declared "I think it is about time we eliminated the Veterinary Corps in the Army and in the Air Force. I think that is a holdover from the old cavalry days." He said, "I know they have a nice lobby down here, and they are trying to bring themselves up with the doctors and dentists but it is time that one is finally washed out, although there is not a great deal of money left in it."

The following month, Mr. Wilson asked the Army, Navy and Air Force to jointly prepare and submit an action program for the reassignment and discontinuation of various functions of the Veterinary Corps with the view of obtaining these services from Agriculture and civilian veterinarians.

In a letter to Mr. Wilson shortly thereafter, Chairman Vinson expressed "grave doubts as to your legal authority to make the proposed changes which you contemplate until a complete report has been made to the Committees on Armed Services." Congressman Vinson suggested that further action be deferred until the 85th Congress convenes next January.

The veteran legislator said he did not believe such a report would be complete without a separate analysis of the proposed transfer by each of the Surgeons General.

The study which is now being completed will be the basis for any report which Secretary Wilson makes to the Congress.

Some in the Defense Department believe, however, that the whole project may be dropped if it proves as indefensible as all pointers now indicate.

HQMC Authorizes Early EM Xmas Discharges

"Home for Christmas" is the intent of a new Marine Corps policy which authorizes commanding officers to grant early discharges to enlisted men whose enlistments expire during the period 21 Dec. 1956 through 6 Jan. 1957.

Men whose tours of duty end during this period may be separated from the Corps between 17 and 20 December so that they will be able to spend the holidays with their families.

The Order, however, does not provide early discharges for the purpose of immediate reenlistment. Nor does it apply to six-month trainees.

"Constellation" Is Name Of 6th Giant Carrier

The sixth Forrestal-class aircraft carrier will be named the USS Constellation, hull number CVA-64.

The keel will be laid at the New York Naval Shipyard in September.

The Constellation will be the second ship in the Navy's history to bear the name. The first Constellation was constructed in Baltimore, Md., in 1795. She was a frigate used to protect American commercial ships against the raids of Barbary pirates.

The ancient Constellation is now in Baltimore where she is being repaired as a historical monument.

The other five supercarriers and their hull numbers are: Forrestal (CVA-59); Saratoga (CVA-60); Ranger (CVA-61); Independence (CVA-62); and, Kitty Hawk (CVA-63).

sales in the U. S. be eased, General Peckham said: "We would like to see the list extended and other items added."

There were reports, revealed in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, that the Pentagon will ask Congress next year to amend current limitations on sales at domestic exchanges. The Exchange Service is being asked to supply data for this presentation.

GENERAL PECKHAM, who has won wide acclaim both in the Services and among the Nation's top manufacturers and retailers for his administration of the global PX system, this year was able to make available the first consolidated report of both domestic and overseas PX operations.

His report showed a net income of $45,723,169, most of which was distributed to soldiers and airmen for morale and welfare expenditures.

General Peckham said that during the past fiscal year the average Serviceman spent $24.48 per month in Exchanges, an increase from $21.97 the previous year.

Despite manpower cuts that pointed to the possibility of a $26,000,000 slump in sales, the Exchange Service dropped only $2,200,000 from fiscal year 1955. This was because of increased per-capita sales in cafeterias and a 16 per cent increase, valued at $4,675,000 in service station sales.

THE DOMESTIC EXCHANGES showed a net profit of $25,022,366 or 7.25 per cent of total sales. From these earnings, Army and Air Force commanders received $17,850,391 for morale and welfare purposes, while $7,844,755 was forwarded to the Board of Directors, Army and Air Force Exchange and Motion Picture Services.

Noting that the maximum PX markup is 25 per cent—it runs about 12 per cent for uniforms—General Peckham stressed that every effort will be made to hold the overall price line in face of rising operating costs.

He said that it may be necessary to increase some prices, but added that other prices will be reduced.

During General Peckham's tenure as head of the Exchange Service, notable progress has been made towards the goal of standardized PX prices around the world. The general predicted that this program will be pushed by General Parks.

AS HIS DEPUTY, General Parks will have Brig. Gen. Roy T. Evans, USA, who will replace Brig. Gen. Edward B. Gallant, USAF.

As he prepared to retire after a military career that spans four decades, General Peckham said he counted the worldwide integration of the PX system as a major achievement of his service as Exchange Service Chief.

He noted that there have been 20 separate PX systems, now replaced by a single set-up.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE, General Peckham said that "a business as dynamic as the Exchange Service must be able to change quickly to meet customer demands; to explore new means of accomplishing its mission; and to devise new methods of bringing greater efficiency at lower cost.

"In the year to come," said General Peckham, who plans to make Tampa, Fla., his temporary home, "this may mean major changes in the organization of the domestic system. It will mean tests of new concepts with respect to the services which Headquarters Army and Air Force Exchange Service performs for the overseas exchange systems.

"It will mean experimenting with new management techniques, and greater use of automation to include electronic data processing."

General Peckham added that the Exchange Service staff and regional PX officers would continue to devote much attention to problems of serving soldiers and airmen at remote installations, such as facilities of the Air Defense Command. He said that by development of a catalogue it will be possible for men at these spots to order any item that would be available to them at a large U. S. exchange.

Atlantic Fleet To Avoid Xmas Concentrations

A spread-out berthing plan for Atlantic Fleet ships during the Christmas-New Year holidays has been ordered by Admiral Jerauld Wright, USN, Commander in Chief, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, to reduce the vulnerability of the Fleet to surprise air attack.

The plan calls for a reduction in the normal holiday in-port concentration of ships. In most cases, concentration will be lessened by having ships more widely separated within their home port areas.

The plan also calls for reduction of berthing concentrations of ships of any given type. Thus, a prescribed limit will be placed on the numbers of a given type that will be berthed together. However, this spread-out plan will have no effect on the granting of holiday leave to ship personnel.

HQMC Seeks Officers

For EAD & SWAG Tours

HQMC is inviting applications from Reserve captains and lieutenants for Extended Active Duty or Standard Written Agreements. The officers may be serving in any Military Occupational Specialty.

EAD periods will be for a minimum of four months and maximum of five years. SWAG tours will be for a one year minimum and a maximum of five years. No EAD or SWAG will be granted which will extend beyond 30 June 1962.

Officers who have been passed over for promotion are not eligible to apply. Captains who are senior to lineal number 998, as shown in the 1 Jan. 1956 Combined Lineal List, are ineligible to make application.

At the same time, Headquarters is seeking majors who are Law or Electronic specialists for extended tours. These officers, however, must be junior to lineal number 365.

Duluth Air Base

Shows F-102 Strength

An open house and air show at the Duluth (Minn.) Air Base recently introduced the Delta-wing all-weather aircraft of the 11th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, 343d Fighter Group, as the first combat-ready unit of F-102's in the Central Air Defense Force.

Operations of the skyborne speedster were explained for an estimated 65,000 visitors by Air Force personnel and officials from Convair, and Hughes Aircraft Company. Convair produces the interceptors and Hughes makes the electronic armament-control systems and the Hughes Falcon guided missiles the aircraft carry.

An hour-long pageant presented a "living history in the air" of fighter planes, beginning with aerobatics of an authentic French Spad from World War I, now owned by Paul Muntz of Hollywood. Others flown for the cheering crowd included a P-38 from WWII and the F-80's, 86's, 89's and 94's in service during and since the Korean War.

A telecast of the pageant opened with a sonic boom from an F-102 flown by Lt. Col. Robert M. (Pappy) Myers, 11th Squadron commander, and featured a welcome from 46,000 feet by Col. Robert L. Gould, base commander, who spoke to the throng over an air-to-ground communications system. The show's climax came with a jolting afterburner salute from 14 of the interceptors flying in close formation at near the speed of sound.

Maj. Gen. Jarred V. Crabb and Brig. Gen. William A. Matheny watched from a reviewing stand with honored guests, including Minnesota's Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag.

Armed Services Plan Liberal Holidays

The Armed Forces plan to give leave to as many officers and men as possible during the Christmas-New Year holidays.

IN THE ARMY, the holiday period extends from 5 P.M., 21 Dec. 1956 through 8 A.M., 7 Jan. 1957. During this period academic work at service schools will be suspended.

Replacement training being given in training bases and in the strategic Reserve also will be suspended.

Men who have not completed training (Basic and Combat and Advanced Individual) before 21 December will be granted leave authorized during the Christmas-New Year period in lieu of the usual leave period which normally is given following completion of combat basic training.

Here's an example:

Basic combat and advanced individual training requires 16 weeks of training. Assume that an individual started his training on 30 Aug. Normally, he would train for eight weeks, be given two weeks of leave, and then complete the remaining eight weeks and graduate on 4 Jan. 1957. Under the Christmas-New Year leave policy, an individual who starts training on 30 August will complete the entire 16 weeks and be given the leave during the year-end holidays.

Those who begin training after 30 Aug. normally would train until 21 Dec., be granted leave, and return to finish the remaining portion of the 16-week cycle.

The same policy applies to granting of administrative absence to Reserve Forces Act trainees.

Major Army commanders are permitted to authorize suspension of other basic training during the holiday period to grant leave to those who want it. Dates for these officers and men, however, need not coincide with the dates set up for the Christmas-New Year period.

IN THE NAVY, the holiday leave period extends from 22 December through 6 Jan. 1957. Leave may be granted by all training activities under management control of the Chief of Naval Personnel.

Commanding officers and officers-in-charge of these activities are permitted to grant leave subject to the limitations and conditions of their commands.

Recruits who have not completed the first four weeks of training, may be granted leave not to exceed 14 days. This leave will be granted in place of the normal recruit leave given after completion of training.

Regular courses of instruction for enlisted trainees, other than recruits, will be suspended during the holiday period. A modified or supplementary course, however, will be given to those who are not granted leave during the year-end holidays.

Ship's company officers and men may be given leave at the discretion of commanding officers. Regular courses of instruction for officer students will be suspended during the holidays, but those remaining aboard will be given supplementary instruction.

IN THE AIR FORCE, the year-end leave policy "will be as lenient as possible," under discretion of local commanders. In the Air Technical Training Command, however, the AF will pursue "a business as usual" policy. New recruits coming into the AF around Christmas will have their travel deferred until after the holidays.

Gen. Benson Promoted;

Heads Teaching Facility

Maj. Gen. Otis O. Benson, Jr., USAF, Commandant of the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, has received his second star, and will head the new $8,800,000 teaching and research establishment planned for the School at Brooks AFB, Tex.

With his promotion, General Benson becomes one of four officers of that rank in the Air Force Medical Service. His promotion reflects the increasing importance of the School, which now is located at Randolph AFB, Tex., as the medical branch of the Air University.

EARLY-OUTS FOR CHRISTMAS

ARMY personnel whose release from active military service would normally occur during the Christmas holiday period, in most cases will be released between 11-21 Dec.

The release policy applies only to personnel who are in the continental U. S. or its territories during the 11-21 December period. Early departure from overseas theaters to meet the provisions of this policy will not be authorized.

Officers and enlisted men who return from overseas and are scheduled for separation during the holiday season will be separated as soon after arrival as possible. To preclude overseas returnees reporting to assigned stations in the continental United States during the Christmas holiday period, extensions of leave will be authorized.

Enlisted personnel eligible for separation will not be retained in service beyond 20 Dec., because of non-receipt of records, but will be separated utilizing temporary records.

The policy will exclude officer personnel to be involuntarily relieved from active duty on specific dates as directed by the Department of the Army; non-Regular Medical Corps, Dental Corps and Veterinary Corps officers, who will not be discharged or released from active duty prior to completion of 21 months' service; enlisted personnel inducted or enlisted under the provisions of the Universal Military Training and Service Act, who are eligible for release prior to completing two years' active military service, but must complete 21 months' active duty, and Regular Army personnel whose reenlistment bonus and accrued leave pay would be adversely affected by an early release.

ARMY'S TURBINE-POWERED Bell XH-40 helicopter hovers at the Bell Aircraft Corporation helicopter division plant at Fort Worth, Tex., ahead of schedule and just 16 months after receiving design competition contract. First helicopter designed for turbo-shaft power-plant, Lycoming T-53 engine, H-40 is expected to cruise at 100 knots, carry 1000-pound payload and be delivered to field troops in 1959. Bell's Chief Pilot Floyd Carlson is shown at the controls.

Marine R&D Chief

Puts On Second Star

Brig. Gen. Robert B. Luckey, USMC, Deputy Chief of Staff (Research and Development), HQMC, put on a second star on 1 Nov.

On the same date, Col. Harvey S. Tschirgi, USMC, Assistant Commanding General, 1st Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif., became a brigadier general.

Generals Luckey and Tschirgi, who were picked for promotion in August, will remain in their present assignments.

General Luckey entered the Marine Corps in 1927 following graduation from the University of Maryland.

At the same time, Headquarters announced that Col. James E. Howarth, Jr., USMCR, has been chosen for general officer rank.

Colonel Howarth was picked by a board which met at HQMC on 22 Oct. The board, headed by Maj. Gen. Littleton W. T. Waller, USMCR, Ret., was authorized to pick one inactive duty colonel for advancement to brigadier general.

Colonel Howarth lives at 4116 Lorcum Lane, Arlington, Va.

General "Makes"

It is to be expected that the Army will announce late this month or at the beginning of November a number of general officer promotions.

These will include officers previously approved by the President for advancement, as well as some who have not yet been named, according to an unofficial analysis of retirements.

The Army and Air Force are utilizing different methods in general officer promotions. The Air Force is making its promotions in relatively large increments at infrequent intervals; the Army is promoting to general officer ranks on a month-to-month basis.

At the same time, Lt. Col. Marjorie C. Power became Deputy Commander of the WAC Center replacing Colonel Lathrope who has held that position since May of this year. Colonel Power was formerly WAC Staff Advisor of Fifth Army with headquarters in Chicago.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lathrope of Kankakee, Ill., Colonel Lathrope was commissioned in the first WAAC class at Ft. Des Moines, Iowa, in July 1942. Gen. Epperly Heads Army Dental Corps

Brig. Gen. James M. Epperly, DC, USA, Director of Dental Activities at the Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., has been named Assistant Surgeon General of the Army and Chief of the Army Dental Corps.

General Epperly will succeed Maj. Gen. Oscar P. Snyder, DC, USA, who retires 30 Nov. after serving since 12 April, 1954 in that capacity. General Epperly's promotion to Major General is expected to be made at the time he takes the oath of office as the new head of the Army's dental officers.

General Epperly was born 5 July, 1900 at Duncans Bridge, Mo., and was graduated from the St. Louis University with the degree of doctor of dentistry in 1923. During his college days he took ROTC training, and eight months after graduation was commissioned a first lieutenant. His first military dental assignment was at Fitzsimons Army Hospital as an intern in 1924.

In July 1925, he became a first lieutenant in the Regular Army and in 1926 he went to the Philippines, where he remained for two years. Upon his return to the United States he was stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco until 1932 and then at the Letterman Army Hospital in the same city. In 1935 he was ordered to Panama, which was followed with tours of duty in Washington, D. C., and at the US Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

One of General Epperly's most important mid-career assignments was to establish a dental service at the newly opened Camp Breckinridge, Ky., and to administer that service as chief. This was July 1942 and he attained the rank of colonel while on this assignment.

General Epperly was named to the headquarters personnel of the Ninth Army and moved with it to Europe, going from England to France at the close of hostilities and eventually to Germany.

In 1946 he was appointed Chief, Dental Service Branch in the Office of The Surgeon General of the Army, remaining until he was transferred in 1951 to Fitzsimons Army Hospital. In May 1953 during temporary duty in Greece to study the dental service of the Greek Army and make recommendations concerning this service, he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General.

In April of the next year he was assigned to Brooke Army Medical Center as Director of Dental Activities where he replaced General Snyder, who was at that time called to Washington to become the Chief of the Army Dental Corps.

USN Eyes Knee-Length Stretch-Type Socks

The Navy is considering adoption of knee-length socks for wear with the white and khaki Summer uniform in areas where short trousers are in use.

At present, officers in warm-weather commands, wear ankle-length socks.

A number of the proposed knee-high, cotton-nylon stretch socks, have been sent to various commands for evaluation tests. The built-in stretch makes the socks hug the leg.

If wear tests prove the advisability of making the item a part of the official Navy wardrobe, the price of socks will go up about 60 cents. The ankle-length socks now in use cost about 40 cents a pair.

CMC O.K.'s Lightweight Garb; Study Single Cap

Use of a new lightweight material for the blue and the green Marine Corps uniforms has been approved by General Randolph McC. Pate, CMC.

The new Marine uniforms will be tailored of 14-ounce gabardine-serge material which is said to have better crease-resistant qualities than the 16-17-ounce kersey cloth currently in use.

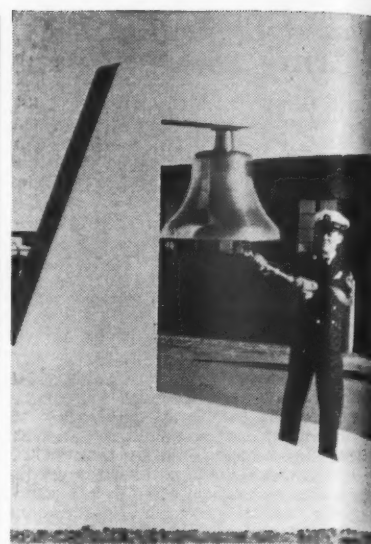

HQMC said, however, that the new material will not be used in Marine Corps uniforms until existing stocks of kersey cloth have been exhausted. It is estimated that the lightweight material will not be used for at least two years.

The Marine Corps Uniform Board has under study the possibility of a single cap for officers with interchangeable covers. If the idea is adopted officers no longer would be required to own two cap frames; they would be able to get by with only one by switching covers from dress blue to service color whenever appropriate.

Marine Corps Board Picks 231 Majors; Number Of Selections Drops Sharply

Promotions to the rank of major in the Marine Corps took a nose-dive for the second year in a row as a selection board chose 231 captains for advancement.

The total is 363 fewer than the number picked last year when 594 tapped for gold oak leaves. The Fiscal Year 1955 board selected 1,668 for majorities.

Of the total number named by this year's board, 210 are unrestricted officers, 12 Limited Duty officers and nine Supply Duty Only officers.

An analysis of the 1 Jan. 1955 Navy Register shows that there were 264 unrestricted officers in the promotion zone which extended from Capt. Robert J. Epperson, USMC, lineal position 556, through Capt. Carlisle G. Kohl, USMC, lineal slot 833. Originally, Marine Headquarters announced that the zone would end with Capt. Charles J. Schneeman, jr., USMC, lineal number 829. Several days before the board convened, however, four additional captains were added to the promotion zone.

Out of the 264 unrestricted officers considered from within the zone, the board chose 197—an in-zone selection rate of 74.6 per cent. In addition, 13 unrestricted officers were named from above the zone. 67 captains were passed over for the first time.

At the same time, the board considered the records of 60 aviators from within the zone and named 55 for promotion—a pass-over rate of only 12 per cent. In addition, the board, headed by Brig. Gen. Thomas G. Ennis, USMC, Director, Division of Reserve, selected two NA's from above the zone. These officers are included in the total of 13 above-zone choices.

All but one of the 13 LDO's considered were tapped for their majority. Five of those named already are serving in the rank of major under terms of the Temporary Promotion Law of 1941 and had their status confirmed under the Officers Personnel Act of 1947.

Of the nine SDO's named, eight were in the promotion zone and one was selected from above the zone. No SDO's in the zone were passed over.

The board did not choose any officers from below the zone.

Capt. Wilburn C. Allen, an LDO, was the only active duty Reservist selected by the board.

Swift promotions will be given to the top 50 officers on the selection list who have been ordered to take physical examinations.

The following list gives the names of the selectees by seniority:

Cited Posthumously

The Commendation Ribbon has been presented posthumously to Lt. Col. Arthur R. Frithsen, who formerly was assigned to the Air Research and Development Command's 6590th Special Activities Squadron. He died Nov., 1955, from illness.

Colonel Frithsen was cited for his work during the period from Oct., 1951, to Dec., 1955, as Chief of the Technical Branches of the Lockland, O., and Hartford, Conn., Area Offices of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission. High Court Reopens Court Martial Cases

The Supreme Court agreed this week to re-review the question of who has the right to try civilians who accompany Servicemen overseas.

The court ruled last June, in a 5-3 decision, that such rights are vested in military courts.

A 6-3 decision this week decided that the two cases on which the decision was based will be re-heard.

One case involves Mrs. Dorothy Krueger Smith, daughter of General Walter Krueger, USA-Ret., who was convicted of slaying her husband in Tokyo in October 1952. The other involves Mrs. Clarice B. Covert, who was convicted of slaying her Air Force husband in England.

In granting a rehearing of the two cases, the Court suggested that attorneys be prepared to cite practical necessities which justify court martial jurisdiction over civilian dependents overseas and historical evidence justifying such action.

The three dissenting Justices, Stanley F. Reed, Harold H. Burton and Tom C. Clark, argued that such questions already have been considered.

Eligible For Awards

Are there any former members of the 4024th Bomb Squadron (formerly the 340th Bomb Squadron and the 343d Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron) still in SAC, who served with either unit during the period 5 Nov 1950 to 9 May 1955?

If so, these SACmen are authorized to wear the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award after their eligibility has been confirmed by their immediate commanders.

Maj. H. W. Blank, SAC's chief of special services, said individual certificates and ribbon bars will be furnished the men as soon as their whereabouts is determined.

Certified consolidated requests for the certificate and ribbon bar, Major Blank said, should be submitted to the Commander-in-Chief, SAC, Attention: Personnel Services, Offutt AFB, Neb.

ARDC Figures Barriers Saved $78-Million

The Air Research and Development Command estimates its runway crash barrier program has saved more than $78-million during the past 13 months as a result of aircraft damage prevention.

Some 300 barriers are now in worldwide use. The ARDC estimated a monthly "profit" of $6-million during the 13-month period ending last 1 Aug. The estimate was arrived at by assuming that all aircraft stopped by the barriers would have been completely destroyed. The final figure was arrived at by deducting the cost of minor repairs and subtracting the cost of the barriers themselves.

The 300 barriers were used 327 times in the 13-month period. The barriers functioned perfectly in 205 of these cases. It is estimated the repair costs on the 205 planes came to $1200, making a total of $246,000, as opposed to the $82-million it would have cost to replace the airplanes.

Service Committees. Election returns indicating that most of the members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees have been returned to their seats for the 85th Congress (see story on first page) is a source of considerable satisfaction to those concerned with the national defense.

The major loss to the committees was the defeat of Representative Dewey Short (R-Mo) ranking Republican member of the House Committee and former chairman, whose 24 years of service in Congress contributed materially to the building of the Armed Forces.

The Armed Services Committees are unique among Congressional committees in that politics play practically no part in their day to day functioning—in fact the Republicans and Democrats on these committees work so closely together in the interest of national defense that it is rare that there is a party division among them.

The reelection of so many of the members of these committees means that the great store of knowledge and experience these statesmen have gained in their years on the committees will be retained for the future good of the Services. Military legislation, particularly that pertaining to personnel problems, is so complicated and technical that it takes some years for a new member to build up a background of knowledge sufficient to enable him to give proper consideration to service problems. Fortunately both the Senate and House Committees have continuing non-political professional staffs whose skill and background enhance the committees' understanding of new bills.

Now the Budget. Return of the Eisenhower administration to power should facilitate action on the military budget and also on the all-important problem of career incentives. Planning which has been underway can go ahead uninterruptedly and, now that the elections are over, without too much consideration being given to their political implications.

As to the budget the conclusion is inescapable that with world conditions as they are the contemplated reduction in service manpower should be abandoned. Both from the standpoint of our own national security and our obligation to the United Nations organization this is not the time to be making cut-backs in strength. Rather, we should review our present strength level to determine if we are in a position to meet our needs and commitments.

The career incentive program becomes more important than ever with shooting wars in progress all over the globe. The wastefulness of constant turn-overs in personnel can no longer be tolerated. If our forces are to be kept in the constant state of readiness world conditions require there must be a stabilization of personnel both in the interest of efficiency and economy. The additional cost of effective career incentives would be more than offset by the increase in fighting power and the lowered cost of training.

The Veterinary Corps. We hope that Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson will drop his plan to abolish the Veterinary Corps. The idea of turning over the work of Service veterinarians to civilian employees sounds inviting but does not take into consideration the problems with which the Services would be faced in war. Food inspection and the acceptance of meat in a combat zone requires the attention of persons commissioned in and living with the Armed Forces—it is not a job for civil service employees. Furthermore, veterinarians in the Services perform many other functions vital to the operation of the forces. Not the least of these is the care of animals used by the Medical Services in research, where the contributions to science have extended far beyond military boundaries.

Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee has "grave doubts" as to the legal authority of the Secretary of Defense to abolish a branch of the service. With the excellent record of the Medical Services of the Armed Forces there should be considerable hesitation in any decision involving the abolition of one of its components.

PX Sales Hops

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your report that the Pentagon is going to try and expand the list of items carried by PX's in the United States is good news, but it would be foolish to be optimistic about the chances.

Past experience has shown that there's been a lot of talk on this subject, but little action. Still and all, it is welcome news that the Defense Department at least is going to make a stab at it.

With so many of us living long distances from our places of duty because of housing shortages, it seems to me that a strong case can be made in support of sale of automobile tires, batteries and other accessories at exchanges.

A HOPEFUL MAJOR

Engineers in Uniform

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The October 1956 issue of the Navy Department Office of Industrial Relations Newsletter is devoted in its entirety to the problem of the acute nationwide shortage of scientific and engineering personnel. Admiral R. E. Cronin, Chief of Industrial Relations, states therein, "We must put forth every possible effort to attract and retain scientific and engineering talents and potential of which there is an acute nation-wide shortage."

Unfortunately the Newsletter limits its discussion to ways and means of improving the lot of civilian engineers and scientists. I, as a regular Navy Civil Engineer Corps officer with almost fifteen years of continuous active duty, would like to see some consideration given by the Cordiner Committee to the many engineering and scientific personnel in uniform in the Defense establishment. Doctors, dentists, lawyers and other uniformed professional groups have been given accelerated promotions or advance constructive service credit towards alleviating shortages in those professions. In view of the well-known acute shortage of engineers, and as a matter of justice and equity, I sincerely hope that the Cordiner Committee considers the uniformed engineers as well.

DISAPPOINTED NAVAL OFFICER

Bachelor Quarters

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

My thanks to Brig. Gen. Keith R. Barney for his stand in favor of better bachelor officers quarters (THE JOURNAL, 27 Oct.).

The emphasis which has been placed on the housing construction program for Service families appears to be more than justified, but it would be encouraging to occasionally hear that the Defense Department also is taking steps to improve housing conditions for those of us who do not yet have families.

During the past six years, I have been stationed at three different bases where the quarters provided for bachelor officers left much to be desired; the present one is the worst of the lot. And, as far as I have been able to determine, there is seemingly little effort being made to correct this inadequacy.

With General Barney as Director of Installations perhaps we'll see some changes. I hope so.

1ST LT., USA

Hooray, Says Nurse

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The Army has given us Nurses solid encouragement with the two new promotions to colonel and promise of more promotions. For once, the Nurse Corps is setting the pace in promotions for women officers.

What we want now is to see Congress pass the promised legislation authorizing better promotion opportunities for Nurses in all the Services on a permanent basis. Meanwhile, however, we are grateful for the interim action.

NEXT WEEK—

● Troop Information ● Aerial Recon ● Rockets Off!

● A hard-hitting article by Maj. Gen. G. S. Meloy, jr., USA, Army Chief of Information, will bring to JOURNAL readers next week an authoritative analysis of what has been wrong with the Troop Information program and what corrective steps are being taken. Every officer and enlisted man who has had to attend or lead a troop information presentation will be interested in General Meloy's report.

● The Fourth Annual Region Aerial Reconnaissance Conference has just been completed at Lehar, Germany. Next week's JOURNAL will carry a complete report on this important event.

● A new Giant Test Rocket Test Stand is nearing completion at Edwards AFB, Calif. Next week's JOURNAL will have a story on this new facility.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Army Air Forces Headquarters announces that the six-engine B-36 heavy bomber could carry an atomic bomb to any inhabited region of the world and return home without refueling in the event of an enemy attack.

50 Years Ago—The opinion is expressed among experts in naval construction that with the battleship of twenty thousand or twenty-five thousand tons displacement the maximum size of the type has been reached, and that the changes which may be made in naval construction hereafter will be such as to make it possible to decrease the displacement, instead of requiring greater size.

90 Years Ago—It has been definitely resolved by the United States to aid Juarez in reconstructing the Mexican Republic, with himself as President. With that aim Mr. Campbell soon will leave for the Mexican coast, and that it may be no idle formality, this Minister will be accompanied by Lieutenant-General Sherman. The interposition of the United States will not be unfavorably received by France, because it conveys to the latter the assurance of payment of its claims.

Dependents Assistance Volunteers Detail Plan To Ease Problems Of SAC Families

CASTLE AFB
MERCED, CALIF.

VOLUNTEERS of the Dependents Assistance Program here at Castle are anxious to be of help to all service personnel and their families. Their mission is to relieve emergencies and undue hardships for dependents of Air Force personnel, especially during the absence of the military member of the family.

Their aim is to develop a spirit of helpfulness, understanding, and unity of purpose among dependents, and a feeling of pride and security as an Air Force family. And they strive to improve morale and effectiveness of SAC military personnel through a program which assures complete assistance to families, particularly in an emergency.

The Dependents Assistance program here at Castle is a highly efficient volunteer organization. Unlike the volunteer fire department, Dependents Assistance does not wait for the sound of the siren to take action. DA volunteers here are always on their toes, preparing for the need before it arises.

The program is composed of the following committees:

1. THE PUBLICITY COMMITTEE, which is headed by Betty Watkins. Her committee is responsible for providing a continuous planned publicity program in coordination with the Dependents Assistance Officer. She writes a column published weekly in the Bomber, prepares notices for the Daily Bulletin, provides news for the radio show broadcast over KYOS, and issues special bulletins.

2. THE GROUP SERVICES COMMITTEE, headed by Barbara Jones, is responsible for planning and organizing services such as the Children's Nursery, Red Cross, DA Orientation, driving courses, and others. They arrange for a meeting place and obtain qualified instructors for all group functions sponsored by the DA.

3. THE CASUALTY COMMITTEE is headed by Pat Field. They function immediately from the DA Center in the event of a crash or other accident. This committee provides volunteers to be with the family if they are needed. It serves as a connecting link between the family and all DA services.

4. THE PERSONNEL SERVICES COMMITTEE under Rosemary Lilius, handles emergency child care, emergency shopping, emergency transportation, and supplies food when a state of emergency prevails in the home. The DA recognizes that in certain instances these services are necessary to avoid an emergency rather than wait for the emergency to occur. However, to prevent abuse of these services, certain controls have been established.

The Personnel Services Committee is also in charge of the lending shop located in the Dependents Assistance Center. There are pots, pans, dishes, mops, brooms, and other articles available for loan to families who are waiting for their household goods to arrive. The lending shop is constantly in need of articles, and any contributions are greatly appreciated.

5. BETTY SHERMAN'S WELCOMING COMMITTEE greets newly-arrived families in an effort to acquaint them with base and local facilities. A "Welcome to Castle" booklet is given to all newcomers when they are visited. Others who live in convenient locations are contacted through letters telling them about Castle, its facilities, and the Dependents Assistance program.

6. THE EVACUATION COMMITTEE, headed by Jo Harper, disseminates evacuation procedures to military families for possible needs in case of enemy attack. This committee also assists the site commander in any way possible whenever there is an actual evacuation. A gigantic project of blood typing all dependents was recently completed by the committee. The blood typing will be invaluable to medical men in the event of a real disaster.

7. THE INTERVIEWING AND COUNSELING COMMITTEE, whose chairman is Helen Wright, obtains facts from dependents needing help. Information ob-

Gen. LeMay Praises Workers In Program

The following message has been sent by General Curtis E. LeMay, Commander-in-Chief, Strategic Air Command, to all Dependents Assistance Volunteers:

"May of this year marked the start of the third year of an expanded Dependents Assistance program within the Strategic Air Command. The work of the many SAC wives in this program has been a splendid thing. It has resulted in more family security in the command, and has consequently increased our effectiveness as a military organization.

"My personal congratulations go to all of you who have worked so hard in this program. Your sacrifices of time and effort in the interest of your teammates exemplifies the true spirit of the United States Air Force Family."

tained from this committee is turned over to the DA Coordinator who determines what action will be taken. When the action is completed, a case history is written and kept on file for future reference.

8. THE TDY COMMITTEE, headed by Ruth Schaefer, is responsible for keeping in contact with wives of personnel on TDY. Prior to departure of a unit, they arrange to obtain any unclassified information on the unit and disseminate the information to the dependents. They are responsible for notifying dependents of the anticipated arrival of the sponsor returning from TDY. In addition, the committee reports any problems of dependents of TDY personnel to the Dependents Assistance Center. When possible, contact is made with TDY personnel through radio MARS and packages are sent to the deployment area.

9. THE OFFICE COMMITTEE is headed by Helen Sullivan. A tremendous bundle of energy, she and her committee are responsible for maintaining training and experience records of volunteers, filing, and typing letters to dependents. They also act in the capacity of receptionists, which includes the answering of countless telephone calls received daily, and registering and giving appointments to dependents for services of the center. In addition to these duties, the committee is always ready to give the Legal Office a helping hand whenever it is needed.

The Dependents Assistance Coordinator, Pat Anderson, is a volunteer appointed by the base advisory council to be responsible for all functions and to work with each committee chairman in carrying out the work of the various committees. Her assistants are Mary Anderson and Mary Beth Bennett.

The DA officer, 1st Lt. George F. Prussia, is assigned by SAC to the program. His duties are to be responsible for the building and to obtain military services necessary to expedite the program. Lieutenant Prussia works closely with the American Red Cross, the Air Force Aid Society, Legal Office, Finance Office, Personal Affairs, and many other sections in obtaining help for dependents. With the exception of A/2C Howard P. Ecklebecker and himself, the program is manned entirely by volunteers who are wives of Castle personnel. No funds are allotted directly to the Dependents Assistance Center.

A DEPENDENTS ASSISTANCE ORIENTATION TRAINING COURSE is given periodically which covers a variety of subjects, all aimed to produce a better informed dependent; and once a month, a combined coffee and business meeting is held at the DA center.

The Air Force has recognized the special problems of the SAC wife and has created Dependents Assistance. Its purpose is to help you help yourself. The Air Force husband, knowing that his wife has someone to turn to for help while he is away, lessens some of his anxiety for his family and gives him a freer mind for duty.

C-130 Gets Rigorous Work-Out In 6-Week Joint Aerial Maneuvers At Pope AFB

The C-130 Hercules—the Air Force's first propjet-propelled combat transport—has demonstrated its ability to deliver troops and supplies by parachute into combat zones in recent simulated "war-time" tests at Pope Air Force Base, N. C.

Air Force pilots and crew members and Army paratroopers and supply forces were impressed with the new cargo-troop air carrier during the six weeks of aerial maneuvers.

Eighty-six missions were flown. A total of 160 tons of supplies, 315 dummies, and 435 paratroopers were dropped.

Each mission simulated in some manner the actual combat conditions in which the new aircraft was designed to be employed.

The Army loaded paratroopers and supplies which would be dropped into the "combat" zone to supply the troops. Many of the equipment drops were the "real thing"—self-propelled weapons, jeeps, guns, food, medical supplies, and road building equipment.

The 3245th Test Group (Bombardment) from Eglin AFB, Fla., in conjunction with the Continental Army Command Board Five at Ft. Bragg, N. C., conducted the tests. The Air Force's Third Aerial Port Squadron supported the project. Maj. Samuel B. Brown, Jr., of the Eglin group was the Air Force project director.

Turn-arounds which required changing the Hercules from a personnel plane carrying 30 troops to a cargo plane carrying heavy shipments took an average of only 20 minutes.

Turn-arounds which required transforming the aircraft from a 40-troop configuration (with center seats in the cargo section) into a heavy platform drop arrangement averaged only about 40 minutes.

The C-130 can carry 20 tons of equipment, or airlift 92 fully combat-equipped troops, or serve as a hospital ship capable of evacuating 70 litter patients.

During one six-day period, the Air Force and Army put a single C-130 through a total of 25 missions. Four missions were run daily, and five missions were run on the sixth day. As soon as the plane landed from one mission, maintenance crews checked the engines and other parts of the aircraft, while a loading crew placed cargo in the plane for another mission. At the other end of the line, crews were moving the delivered cargo from the drop zone.

The Hercules can be used either as an all-cargo ship or a personnel plane. On two occasions during the testing period, however, the medium transport carried both cargo and personnel. A platform was dropped from the ramp, followed immediately by five paratroopers—also from the ramp. On another flight, the aircraft dropped a 22,235-pound Marine weapon—the "Ontos"—on its first pass over the drop zone, and then dropped personnel from the same plane on a second pass.

The shake-down flights showed up some operational "bugs" which will be corrected, Lockheed officials said, but, on the whole, the testing proved the versatile propjet plane can serve the purposes for which it was constructed.

One malfunction—which might have been tragic—became, instead, a dramatic proof of the ruggedness of the C-130 and the skill of U. S. Air Force pilots. When a landing gear stuck in the closed position, Capt. Russell Dobyns, aircraft commander of the Hercules, brought the transport in for a belly landing. A smooth touchdown was effected and the damage to the aircraft was limited to the skin under-surface of the fuselage. Frame or former wrinkling or distortion did not occur and the aircraft was declared fit to fly. The following day the gear was worked down and locked and the plane was flown, after a few minor repairs, to the Marietta factory for study and analysis.

Each mission was intended to explore a different aspect of the Hercules. Data was obtained to show the requirements for maintaining and supplying the C-130 during field operations. A study also was made of the training requirements for personnel working on this new aircraft.

The Tactical Air Command had two representatives (Capt. Harrison I. Briggs and 1st Lt. Paul E. Howard of the 314th Troop Carrier Wing, 18th Air Force, Sewart AFB, Tenn.) present, gathering information in readiness for the delivery of the first C-130 Hercules to the Air Force as an operational unit in December.

High ranking officers of CONARC Board Five conducted and participated in the jumps and drops from the C-130. Among the officers joining the men from the 82d Airborne Division in the paratroops were Col. William Paddock, Col. G. M. Griswold, Lt. Col. W. P. Francisco, Lt. Col. K. Warmbrod, and Capt. R. O. Stephens of CONARC.

Earlier this year, the C-130 set a new world record in aviation for heavy cargo drops. At El Centro, Calif., it dropped a single platform loaded with 27,000 pounds of iron. This was the heaviest single load ever extracted from any aircraft.

Exec. At Nashville

Lt. Col. Harry C. Besancon, USA, has assumed the position of Executive Officer for the Nashville District, Army Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, according to an announcement by Col. Eugene J. Stann, USA, District Engineer.

More Promotions For Army Women

The Army has told details of its program to provide a "substantial increase" in promotion opportunities for women in the medical services.

THE JOURNAL of 27 October told of the promotion of two nurses to the rank of colonel. They are Col. Pauline Kirby, ANC, Chief Nurse at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., and Col. Agnes A. Maley, ANC, Chief Nurse of the Sixth Army at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Now comes word that the Army intends to make 22 Nurse Corps promotions to lieutenant colonel and 232 to major, instead of the previously scheduled 24 to major and five to lieutenant colonel.

This is an interim program pending legislation to improve Nurse Corps promotions in all the Services, which will be submitted to Congress early next year.

The Army said that Women Medical Specialists can expect an allotment of four lieutenant colonel spaces. Captain to major promotions have been increased by 18 from 15 to 33 in this branch.

Boards have made their selections, which will be announced in the near future.

Within the totals authorized, the boards were allowed to include in their recommendations two majors and 23 captains of the Nurse Corps and two captains of the Medical Service Corps from below the primary zone for temporary promotion to the next higher grade under the outstanding officer promotion program.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S POWERFUL VICTORY is seen at the Pentagon as a big plus factor in winning approval for forthcoming military legislation—notably the new pay plan being completed by the Cordiner Committee. Defense officials note that the President's great prestige played a major role in Congressional passage of recent career legislation, most particularly the Family Medical Care Act, which had been extremely controversial. SERVICE LEADERS who are striving to win liberalized sales rules in U. S. Exchanges are hopeful that the Chief Executive will mention this problem, along with such matters as high rentals for substandard quarters, in his State of the Union Address to the new Congress in January.

CROSS-SERVICE USE of missiles is increasing. The Air Force, which previously had stated its desire to use the Navy's antiaircraft missile, Talos, now is making plans to use another Navy missile, Sidewinder. It's an air-to-air weapon and would supplement the Air Force's Falcon. THE NAVY WILL EMPLOY a shipboard version of the Jupiter, on whose development the Navy is working with the Army.

AIR FORCE ROTC EXPERTS have noted an increase in freshman and sophomore enrollments, but a slump in the advanced course. All together, there are now about 100,000 ROTC cadets in 186 colleges and universities. It's reported that 21 coeds are seeking enrollment in the Advanced Course at 10 institutions.

THE ARMED SERVICES WILL LOSE a great friend and hard fighter with the surprise defeat in Missouri of Representative Dewey Short, ranking Republican member of the House Armed Services Committee. With the Chairman, Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, Mr. Short has been a vocal spokesman for adequate defense forces and a bold advocate of legislation that will assure top notch personnel for the Services. MR. VINSON AND MR. SHORT have insisted that the work of their Committee be as devoid of political considerations as possible. Their combined voices on the floor of the House have spelled passage of much critically needed legislation during the past years. FOR MR. VINSON, the absence of Mr. Short after 24 years will be a personal loss, for the two redoubtable legislators, though leaders in opposite parties, are close friends.

THE NATION-WIDE TEACHER SHORTAGE is prompting an increasing number of boards of education and college and university deans to seek retired military personnel as teachers. Contact points in most cases are the retired activities units the Services have set up to help retired personnel with varied personal matters.

THE NAVY IS URGING legislation to authorize additional Limited Duty Officers. The proposal, which has received Budget Bureau study, may be expanded to include the Army and Air Force as well.

DESCRIPTIVE FARM TERMS will come into the jargon of military families overseas with expansion of the "butter into bricks" program. This calls for use of funds from sale of surplus agricultural commodities for construction of Service housing. In England, grateful Air Force families are calling these dwellings "Tobacco Road" housing, because the money has come from sale of tobacco. Now approval has been granted for 3000 units costing $50 million in France at 28 Army and AF bases.

THE ARMY IS MAKING A PITCH in current budget discussions for use of Navy sea-based aircraft to move soldiers and supplies. It will be interesting to see if the Navy supports the Army. THERE'S GOOD REASON to believe that the Navy, with expectancy of limited airlift resources, would want to concentrate on working with the Marines. The Air Force during past years has lacked a clear-cut policy on its use of sea-based aircraft, but the prospect of nuclear-powered planes has stimulated new Air Force interest in seaplanes.

A GRASS ROOTS APPROACH to the manpower retention problem is being employed by key SAC units. Maj. Gen. Archie J. Old, jr., USAF, Fifteenth AF Commander at March AFB, Calif., has summoned all squadron commanders to a series of three-day conference meetings on personnel matters. He says that "retention is a military mission, second only to operational commitments."

ARMY AVIATION LEADERS from all commands will meet at the Pentagon next week for three days of discussion on present activities and plans for the future. It's still another step in the Army's drive to bolster its aviation program.

ALL THE WOMEN SERVICES—but most especially the Nurses—will be encouraged by the Army's action in naming two new ANC colonels. (The Journal 27 Oct.) No other Women's Service has had more than one colonel (or Navy captain) on active duty at the same time. With a precedent set in the Army Nurse Corps, there is likely to be increased recognition for women in uniform in all the Services.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER, if reelected, may "change doctors." His long-time physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McN. Snyder, MC, USA-Ret., will be 76 in February. There's speculation that the famed medical officer will leave active service again. In that event, the logical successor to the post of White House Physician would be Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, MC, USA, who performed the ileitis operation. He will be 54 on 18 Nov. General Heaton presently CG of Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D. C., presumably would relinquish that key assignment if called to the White House.

THE ONE BIG OMISSION in the barrage of speeches at the Association of the U. S. Army sessions was reference to prospective cuts in Army manpower. Army leaders either have determined that such cuts are inevitable and consequently resistance is futile, or else they decided to delay any remarks on this volatile issue until after the elections. IT WAS NOTEWORTHY that Sec'y. Brucker advised Association members that the Army "does not gauge its strength in numbers, but rather in the quality and devotion of its members."

that USAA has long been the choice of the Armed Forces

Organized 34 years ago to provide low-cost automobile insurance for officers and warrant officers of the armed forces, United Services Automobile Association is a non-profit organization under the management of active and retired service officers.

The policy of insuring only preferred risks, plus responsible management, has provided substantial savings and has made USAA truly the choice of the services.

In 1955 over seven million dollars of dividends were paid in the states to 262,161 members, amounting to an average saving of 44% of the standard manual premiums on automobiles.

Wherever you serve, USAA can serve you. Claims are settled rapidly, also—even in the most remote places.

Give yourself the most responsible protection for the least cost.

From 15 years of jet-powered leadership comes America's first propjet airliner—

LOCKHEED

The LOCKHEED ELECTRA's heritage of jet-powered leadership—gained from the design and manufacture of over 8,000 jet-powered aircraft of the widely varying types shown here—endows this pace-setting plane-of-tomorrow with qualities that will give you a thrilling, new way to travel in the jet air age.

Sleek aerodynamic beauty, time-tested structural stamina, unique high-performance capabilities and exceptional economy of operation and maintenance are but a few of the LOCKHEED ELECTRA's points of superiority. Its mighty Allison propjet engines, combining jet thrust with proven propeller dependability, enable it to whisk passengers into and out of existing air terminals which now handle nearly 98% of total U. S. air passenger traffic.

The new LOCKHEED ELECTRA's high speed, swift climbing ability and king-size fuel reserves insure greater schedule regularity and reliability—because the ELECTRA can depart on time and fly, undaunted, above or around bad weather. And its spacious cabin-compartments are so restfully quiet, so vibration-free and comfortable, you'll be amazed to discover you're traveling at 7-mile-a-minute speeds.

Unexcelled for short-to-medium range flights, the LOCKHEED ELECTRA brings the advantages of jet age air travel to all of the people, of all cities, everywhere—with commuter-like timetables affording travelers a wide choice of flights.

Now in production, the LOCKHEED ELECTRA starting in 1959 will go into service for American, Braniff, Eastern, KLM-Royal Dutch, National, Western and other leading domestic and foreign airlines—extending Lockheed's jet-powered leadership around the world.

Navy 33—Notre Dame 7

Navy, for the first time in a dozen years, dealt a severe beating to Notre Dame in an exciting football team contest viewed by 57,773 spectators in Municipal Stadium in Baltimore on 4 Nov.
The Fighting Irish never had it so bad at the hands of Navy. Masterminded by quarterback Tom Forrestal, the middies ran over Notre Dame in virtually every department.

Navy rushed the losers, 231 yards to 55. Navy made 22 first downs to Notre Dame's 7. It was altogether a one-sided affair.

Navy coach Eddie Erdelatz called it an "all-out performance and a tremendous team effort" by the middies. "This he said, was the best we played in a long time."

USMCR Hopes To Aid One Million Children

More than a million underprivileged children are expected to have a brighter Christmas this year because of the voluntary work of the Marine Corps Reserve.

As the ninth annual "Toys for Tots" program gets underway more than 240 Organized Marine Corps Reserve units will join forces to collect playthings.

Each campaign is local; the toys, which are collected and wrapped by Marines, are distributed in the area in which they are donated.
Distribution of the gifts is made under the direction of community organizations.

This year's campaign is expected to surpass last year's drive when 5,047,777 toys were collected and given to 886,988 youngsters. This estimate is based on records of previous campaigns which show that "Toys for Tots" collections have grown at a pace of about one million toys each year since 1952.

COL. JACOBS WINS AWARD

The Wellcome Award will be presented to Col. Eugene C. Jacobs, MC, USA, commanding officer of the Army Hospital at Ft. Monroe, Va., at the annual Honors Night dinner of the Association of Military Surgeons, to be held 14
Nov. at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C.

The Sir Henry Wellcome Medal and Prize, awarded each year by the Association, consists of a silver medal, a scroll, and an honorarium of $500. It is awarded for the best essay on a military medical subject.

Colonel Jacobs' prize-winning essay, "Tuberculosis: Yet an Unconquered Disease," will appear in the January 1957 issue of Military Medicine, official organ of the Association.

IT'S ARMY GREEN

The Army has decided to call its new uniform "Army Green."
This choice was made following a world-wide contest.

At the same time, Changes 3 to SR 32-162-5 has been released, describing in detail how the Army
Green should fit.

The regulation states the following concept of fit:

The Army green coat is a single breasted, 4-button type which extends below the crotch. Sleeve lengths for this coat should fall to a point approximately 1 inch past the bottom of the wristbone; when properly fitted the coat sleeve covers the shirt sleeve. The coat should fit easily over the chest and shoulders with enough freedom across the chest to permit a slight drape effect (rather than a snug fit) and provide ease under the arms. The shirt collar should show approximately one-fourth of an inch above the coat collar.

The back of the coat is also designed to have a slight drape and should be smooth and not tight across the shoulders. The center vent in the back of the coat should not gap or spread.

Navy Chemists Mix "Light-Fast" Paint

Navy planes participating in "Operation Deepfreeze" at the South Pole are testing a recently developed fluorescent paint which reportedly has greater weather resistance and durability than any type previously used.

The orange-red paint, developed by Naval Research Laboratory chemists, also is being tested by a small number of planes in the United States and used as sea marker aids.

Use of the paint is expected to cut down the hazard of mid-air collisions by making it easier for pilots to see approaching aircraft. The "high-visibility" paint is also valuable in search and rescue operations because downed planes will be more easily spotted from the air.

The paint has a "light-fast" quality which stands up against adverse weather condition for about six months.

Experiments are being continued and Navy chemists foresee a high visibility paint of even longer life in the near future.

Navy Awarded $22 Million For Air Navigation Gear

Hoffman Laboratories, Inc., of Los Angeles, Calif., has been awarded a $22 million Navy contract for air navigation equipment, President H. Leslie Hoffman, has announced.

The Bureau of Aeronautics contract is the largest undertaking in the history of the company, Mr. Hoffman said. It calls for a total of 6001 units of the ARN-21, airborne portion of the TACAN air navigation system.

The new contract brings Hoffman's total backlog in military orders to $43 million.

Cut-Off Date

THE JOURNAL was in error in its issue of 20 Oct. in reporting the cut-off date for promotion to temporary major in the Army. THE JOURNAL gave the date as 30
Nov. 1953, whereas the correct cut-off date was 30 Nov. 1950.

HE KNOWS THE ROPES

The 82d Airborne Division's 325 Airborne Infantry Regiment's NCO of the month is young but capable Sgt. William D. Hibst. Only twenty-one, Sgt. Hibst knows the ropes in the 325's "D" Company better than would be expected of someone with twice his experience.

He has acted as operations and reconnaissance sergeant with the heavy weapons company since joining the unit during Exercise Sagebrush. He was a Private E-2 when he first assumed his duties, particularly demanding for one of that rank and relative inexperience.

His experience before joining "D" Company was limited to eight weeks of basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. and advanced heavy weapons training at Fort Dix, N. J.

Prepare Bride's Room

ANDREWS AFB, MD.—A new chapel will open 4 Nov. at Andrews Air Force Base. Air base chapels like town and city churches, are the scenes of many large and small weddings. In anticipation of just such events, the Andrews Chapel has set aside one room to be known as "the bride's room." As the name suggests, this room is to be used exclusively by the bride and her attendants for the last minute "touch up" to face and costume.

Many hours of careful and personal selection of materials and furnishings for this charming room, were spent by Mrs. Ernest Moore, wife of Maj. Gen. Moore, MATS Vice Commander. She was assisted by Mesdames Thomas S. Moorman, Jr., Dudley D. Hale, William T. Smith, and Robert S. Cumberland, all members of the Officers' Wives' Club which furnished the funds for most of this project.

The Bureau will serve as an agency to receive recommendations from post dependents concerning practices, procedures and policies connected with community services. "We are actually concerned with making Ft. Benning a better place to live and serve than it is at present," Col. Earl F. Klinck, former Deputy Post Commander, said at the committee's organizational meeting. He emphasized that the bureau is not an outlet for airing complaints but that it desires constructive suggestions.

Works With Community

■ CASTLE AFB, CALIF.—An organization with a new approach is quietly assisting airmen at Castle to become a part of the civilian community during off duty hours. The Base Communities Activities Association is a newly formed service group with the aim of making Castle personnel feel at home in the communities near the base.

Unlike the Air Force's personnel services office, which manages a bowling alley, service club, gymnasium, and other Air Force recreational facilities, the Base Communities Activities Association seeks opportunities for airmen participation in clubs, religious and athletic activities.

Merced's Mayor Reno Ferrero, with former Mayor Charles Vann of Atwater and Brig. Gen. William E. Eubank, Jr., Commander of Castle's 93d Bombardment Wing, appointed civilian and military members of Merced and Atwater to study the off duty recreational opportunities in the area. They are Jack Boulet, chairman; Mrs. Phyllis Sullens, secretary; Tony Rose, treasurer; Bill Robinson, Don Fretz, and Pat Cosentino from Merced. Atwater members are Harold Holman, who is vice-chairman, and Ernest Buller. The Castle representatives include Lt. Col. Howard Warren, Chaplain (Capt.) Melvin Witt, Capt. Harold McGeehe and Capt. Robert Stephenson.

Mrs. Helen L. McCarthy was selected to get the program underway. At her office in Castle's recently completed Airman's Service Club, Mrs. McCarthy is a friend to hundreds of young airmen who stop in after duty hours to eat a sandwich or to chat with someone who knows their language. A Red Cross "Lady" specializing in recreation work for 10 years, Mrs. McCarthy followed this experience as service club director at Fort McPherson, Ga., for 23 months. She lives in Castle Gardens with her daughters, Mickey, 13, and Helen, aged 7. Her 21-year-old son, Perryman, is stationed at Thule AFB, Greenland.

Fort Meade Wives

Are "Volunteer Nurses"

FT. GEORGE G. MEADE, MD. Registered nurses, wherever you find them, come running in an emergency—like fire horses responding to the bell. And Ft. Meade has made good use of this tendency toward civic consciousness through an organization recently formed on post.

Called the "Volunteer Nurses," the group is composed of registered nurses not actively engaged in their profession and now living on the military reservation as wives of personnel assigned to the post.

Betty Wiegand, wife of the Post Commander Col. Charles D. Wiegand, was one of the founders. A graduate of the Army School of Nursing at Walter Reed Hospital, Mrs. Wiegand is well known for her untiring efforts in furthering social service projects of all kinds.

"Our main reason for forming the organization," Mrs. Wiegand said, "was to identify Army wives with the necessary training to assist our Post Hospital personnel in immunization clinics and other large scale operations. We found the response so enthusiastic that we are hopeful our small initial group can grow into a continuing source of supply to the post of trained nursing personnel in the event of need."

The club's program includes monthly lectures by officers of the hospital staff on the latest nursing techniques and advances achieved by medical science. The lectures are augmented by movies of the latest operative techniques, tours of the hospitals and research institutions in the area, and discussion sessions.

The Ft. Meade Volunteer Nurses have found these refresher lectures keep them alert and up-to-date. In the event any member of the group finds she can return to her profession, the knowledge gained gives confidence in her ability to again take her place in the medical world.

And it is not all work. Socially, the group is a congenial gathering of Army wives with mutual interests.

74 In Receiving Line At Ft. Lee UN Event

FT. LEE, VA. Seventy Allied officers from 19 countries were honored here at the second annual United Nations Day reception sponsored by the International Group of the Women's Club.

Col. William D. Buchanan, deputy post commander, and Mrs. Buchanan headed the huge reception line, which encircled the Blue Room of the Officer's Open Mess. The flag of each nation flanked the representatives of that country.

More than 300 guests moved through the reception line. Following the reception, a buffet dinner was served in the Main Ballroom.

The United Nations Day reception, now becoming a Ft. Lee tradition, is a part of the overall effort of the Women's Club International Group to Welcome Allied officers who attend courses at the Quartermaster School and the Army Logistics Management Center. Mrs. Claude E. Ray, head of the International Group's activities, says a gala Christmas party and a barbecue next Spring are also planned.

As a part of the Group's program, a system of sponsorship has been established here, whereby Ft. Lee officers and their wives volunteer to assist one or more Allied officers in becoming acquainted with Post social and family life.

Also in the receiving line was Mrs. Ralph R. Burr, president of the Women's Club.

Obituaries

Brig. Gen. Chandler Campbell, USMC-Ret.

Funeral services were held at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C., on 31 Oct., for Brig. Gen. Chandler Campbell, USMC-Ret., who died at the U. S. Naval Hospital, St. Albans, L. I., N. Y., on 28 Oct., after a long illness. He was 76 years old.

A native of West Virginia, General Campbell was a veteran of the Philippine Insurrection, fought in the South American Interventions, the Dominican campaign, the Cuban uprisings and the Nicaraguan campaign. Upon the overthrow of the current government in Haiti in 1915, U.S. Marines were sent to that country to protect American interests. General Campbell, then a captain, led a small band of Marines to rescue a patrol trapped by the fierce machete-wielding Cacos. When finally driven off, the Cacos suffered 40 dead compared to six wounded Marines. General Campbell was retired from active duty in 1936 in the grade of colonel, but was promoted to the rank of brigadier general on the Retired List in 1942, when he was cited for his heroic participation in the Haitian action.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Thayer Campbell of 765 Riverside Dr., New York City, two grandsons, LCDR. Thomas R. Campbell, USN, and Mr. Laughon Smith; and two nephews, Mr. Alex Campbell and Lt. Richard Campbell, USN.

Col. Lucius Featherstone Wright, MC, USA-Ret.

Military graveside services were held on 6 Nov., at the West View Cemetery, Atlanta, Ga., for Lucius F. Wright, MC, USA-Ret, who died at his home in Atlanta, at the age of 71.

Born at Newnan, Ga., Colonel Wright was graduated from Emory University Medical School in 1911. He entered military service in August 1917 and received his Regular Army commission in September 1920. During WWI, Colonel Wright was stationed at Camp Lee, Va., and in the years following, his assignments included Walter Reed General Hospital, Fitzsimons General Hospital and Sternberg and Tripler General Hospitals. In WWII, Colonel Wright organized and commanded a 2500-bed Station Hospital at Camp Claiborne, La. He was retired from active duty in 1946 and had made his home in Atlanta since.

He is survived by his sister, Miss Kathleen Wright of Atlanta; two sons, Maj. Lucius F. Wright, Jr., now stationed in Korea, and Dr. R. Denny Wright of Mobile, Ala.; and five grandchildren.

RAdm. Bradley Urges Navy Families To Take Salk Shots; Especially O'Seas

RAdm. Bruce E. Bradley, MC, USN, Deputy Chief, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, asks all Medical Department officers to urge Servicemen and their families to take Salk shots.

Despite the fact that mandatory immunization against poliomyelitis is not required by the Navy, the Admiral points out that "the impact of the disease on those who may be so unfortunate as to acquire it is such that it is considered obligatory for Medical Department personnel to urge military personnel and others who normally receive immunizations from the Medical Department to receive it..."

Service families should be particularly urged to take shots if they are en route to geographic areas of known high endemicity, if they are in an area where the disease is prevalent, or if they are otherwise exposed to more than usual risk.

Areas of the world where poliomyelitis is highly endemic, Admiral Bradley notes, are incompletely defined.

In the Philippines, Hawaii, Caribbean, North Africa, and certain other areas where serologic studies have been carried out, it is known that nearly all native children have been infected with more than one type of poliovirus by the age of five years. The incidence of clinically diagnosed poliomyelitis, however, is low. Presumably, the Admiral says, because of the very early age at which infection takes place.

In other areas, such as Great Britain, Europe, and the Scandinavian countries, the incidence of infection, measured serologically, parallels that in the United States, and the experience with epidemic outbreaks is very similar.

In general, the Assistant BuMed Chief advises, the risk of acquiring poliomyelitis when ordered overseas can be considered to be inversely related to the level of sanitary practices in the country to which they are ordered and to contact with native populations.

In other words, the poorer the hygiene and sanitation and the more contact with native children, the higher the risk.

To a large extent, the Admiral states, polio is a family disease. When a child in a family contracts the infection, other susceptible members of the family are usually also infected whether having clinical symptoms or not.

It is for this reason, he says, that parents with young children in the family generally run a greater risk that single adults. Nursery schools have been found to be important foci of spread.

As the availability of Salk vaccine has increased, most restrictions of its use have been removed.

A few communities in the States still retain a priority system. The Admiral recommends that Navy doctors conform to community practices in distribution of the vaccine.

All that is necessary to thread the new ribbon by his method is to put the two spools in place. The ribbon is in position without any extra loss of time, and without the hands being soiled through handling. An Army release from Verona gave no additional details.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond
Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has appointed the temporary officers listed below to permanent rank in the grades indicated below:

TO LIEUTENANT COMMANDER

Malloy, Francis J. Watson, Arthur M.
Booze, James W.

TO LIEUTENANT

Young, Rubin F., Jr. Amateis, Roland P., Jr.
Perron, Gerard J. Hodelniemi, John H.

Their dates of rank in permanent rank are the same as the dates assigned for temporary service.

This is the first time for several years that the Coast Guard has not made any advancements to temporary service. Under normal circumstances, Headquarters announces at least a handful of assignments to temporary rank on the 1st of each month.

This month, however, there were no vacancies. This situation arises from the fact that officers who normally would retire, thus opening billets for junior officers, have delayed leaving the Service in order to take advantage of the Survivor Benefits Act (PL 881).

The promotion flow will start again on 1 February 1957 when more than the normal number of junior officers will be given advanced temporary ranks. Their dates of rank, however, will not be made retroactive to the dates they normally would have been promoted.
